Conflict Minerals Compliance Statement 2015

Section 1502 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, and the Securities and Exchange Commission Rules adopted in connection therewith, require certain corporations to report the use of “Conflict Minerals” in the manufacture of their products. Generally, Conflict Minerals collectively refers to cassiterite, combustible-tantalite, gold, wolframite, or their derivatives, including tantalum, tin, and tungsten, which originate from the Democratic Republic of the Congo or specified adjoining countries (referred to herein as “Covered Countries”)

DUALCO, as a privately held corporation, is not subject to the Conflict Minerals rules and reporting requirements. However, we understand that our customers may be, and are committed to helping them comply with their reporting requirements.

In order to determine if DUALCO’s manufactured products contain Conflict Minerals, we have information from key suppliers to ascertain their use of any Conflict Minerals in the supplied materials. DUALCO’s key suppliers (i) do not use Conflict Minerals in the material they supply to us, (ii) have no reason to believe the Conflict Minerals they use may have originated in the covered countries, and/or (iii) reasonably believe that the Conflict Minerals they use are not recycled or scrap sources. DUALCO can represent that, to the best of our knowledge, our manufactured products either do not contain Conflict Minerals, or to the extent they may, such products are “DRC conflict free” as defined by paragraph (4) of Section 1502.

The primary metals used in DUALCO manufactured products do not contain Conflict Minerals (Tantalum, Tin, Gold, and Tungsten; or their derivatives).

DUALCO continues to work with key suppliers to ensure that we are able to identify the use of Conflict Minerals in our supply chain, and the representations made in this compliance statement remain accurate. To that end, we reserve the right to amend this statement at any time based on subsequent developments or information.

If you have any questions or concerns regarding this statement, please don’t hesitate to contact us.
